

Abstract

My thesis entitled “The anti-corruption policy of the EU” regulates the topic of the anti-corruption measures within the EU and focuses on all levels of this issue, from the European institutions to the strategies for the member states. The first chapter introduces the development of individual instruments and their impact on the national legislation. Then the thesis continues through the institutional framework of anti-corruption policies within the EU to the efforts of other international organizations in combating corruption and their corresponding tools.

The thesis also includes a chapter devoted to the anti-corruption policy towards candidate countries, which is followed by the excursion into the Czech environment dealing with the practical aspects of the implementation of the anti-corruption measures of the EU.